The title of presentation :

Chinese public views on the use of biotechnology

Abstract:

This report presents an analytic description of Chinese's perceptions of biotechnology from 2003 to 2006, based on two surveys carried out in Zhejiang Province of China, during 2003 and 2006. The following questions will be discussed: attitudes to benefit, risk, moral acceptability and support of biotechnology applications; consumer behaviour connected with GM food; opinions about the uses of genetic information; trust in people or groups involved in biotechnology and genetic engineering; the stability or changes in particular aspects of public perceptions will be assessed.
